

HAVE YOUR WORK EXPERIENCE RECOGNISED

WITH AN INTERNATIONAL WORK CERTIFICATE

Q: What do employers want?

A: Academic qualifications + work experience

Most employers look for a combination of qualifications and previous work experience when recruiting graduates. With the number of university graduates increasing each year, job seekers with degrees are easy to find. That's why having an International Work Certificate can give you the competitive edge you need to stand out in a crowd!

WORK CERTIFICATE

WHAT IS THE INTERNATIONAL WORK CERTIFICATE?

The International Work Certificate (IWC) is a unique program designed to recognise the skills, workplace development and experience students gain during employment.

For students, the IWC provides the extra advantage required when competing for highly sought after professional graduate roles.

For employers, the IWC provides the assurance that the students have validated credible work experience and have demonstrated the initiative and drive to develop themselves personally and professionally.

About the Program

- Available to both undergraduate and postgraduate students.
- Students must be enrolled in a degree program of at least three (3) trimesters.
- 500 hours of casual, part-time or volunteer work experience must be recorded in the IWC Log Book.
- Complete four (4) professional skills workshops.
- Complete the Commercialisation Awareness Test (CAT). This measures the students' work readiness as well as their business and commercial acumen.
- Graduates with a GPA of ≥ 4 will be awarded the IWC Certificate.
